National Physicians' Day

May 1st marks National Physicians' Day in Canada.

Over the past year, we have been reminded of the dedication of our physicians and all health professionals. Every day, physicians go above and beyond to care for their patients and build a stronger health care system. Facing unprecedented circumstances and anxiety, physicians are leading the public health response, caring for those affected by COVID-19, and sustaining our health care system.

As we celebrate National Physicians' Day, we reflect on the work and sacrifices made by our physicians and health care workers throughout these extraordinary times. We thank them for the care they provide, now and always. Their commitment to their profession should not go unnoticed.
